

Matching Against Motor Vehicle and Social Security Records

What fields from the voter registration form will the state seek to match to motor vehicle or Social Security records? Identifying number, last name, first initial, and date of birth.

How precise is the match standard? The SSN must match exactly, and either the date of birth, last name, or first initial must also match exactly.

How much human intervention is involved in determining whether information is matched? The matching process is fully automated.

Description of matching process: Currently, the state elections office regularly receives an electronic file from the Department of Public Safety; state officials use this file to perform the automatic match. Tennessee plans to link the databases in real-time in the near future. Results of the match will be sent to county elections offices for any necessary follow-up.

Note: Tennessee takes three additional steps before placing an applicant on the rolls. County officials will manually attempt to match each applicant's street address against a database of valid street addresses; if no match can be found, the application will be rejected. County officials will also manually attempt to match the applicant's name and date of birth against the database of persons with felony convictions; if a match is found, the application will be rejected. Finally, county election officials will mail a voter registration card to each prospective registrant. If the card is returned, the address is checked for errors and the card is sent again; if the card is again returned, the application will be rejected.⁵

What are the consequences if the state cannot find a match? The applicant will be registered, but like all voters, she will have to show identification at the polls.

Notice and Opportunity to Resolve Errors

Does the applicant have the opportunity to correct a missing or incomplete identifying number, without submitting a new form? No. The applicant may submit a new form with correct information by the voter registration deadline, or may appear in person to correct the information at the county election commission up through 5 days before the election.⁶

Does the applicant have the opportunity to resolve a failed match, without submitting a new form? Tennessee has no relevant stated policy.

If information on an otherwise timely application is corrected after the voter registration deadline, is the correction timely? Yes, if the correction is made in person at the county election commission up through 5 days before the election.

Description of notice and correction process: The county election commission will attempt to notify, by mail or telephone, an applicant whose identifying number is missing, incomplete, or illegible; the application will be considered "pending." The applicant may correct the missing information by mailing in a new registration form by the voter registration deadline, or by appearing at the office of the county election commission up until 5 days before the election.⁷ Tennessee law also provides that the county commission “may correct any errors in registration records which are apparent on the face of the records or which are called to its attention by the voter whose record is incorrect.”⁸

Identification Requirements at the Polls

Who must provide identification at the polls? Every voter must provide identification at the polls. In addition, a voter whose registration is “pending” on Election Day must show proof of residence to vote a provisional ballot.⁹

What forms of identification are accepted?

A voter whose registration is “pending” must, in order to vote a provisional ballot, show a document bearing the voter’s address.¹⁰ All voters must show any form of identification that contains a signature or execute an affidavit of identity.¹¹

What are the consequences of failing to show identification? The voter will not be allowed to vote. A voter must show at least proof of residence to vote a provisional ballot.¹² That ballot will then be counted if it is determined, after examining the records of the election commission and the state departments of health, human services, mental health and developmental disabilities, safety and veterans affairs, that the voter “should have been registered to vote.”¹³

every voter:	any document with signature affidavit
voters whose registration is “pending,” including voters with no identifying number:	any document with address
